FAKULTAS ILMU KOMPUTER

In early 2025, Indonesia faced an unemployment rate of around 5.3%, with certain sectors experiencing sharper job losses. The manufacturing industry, especially textiles and footwear, saw large-scale layoffs due to reduced export demand and automation adoption, while retail chains closed underperforming outlets as online shopping grew. At the same time, many fresh graduates struggled to find jobs matching their skills, reflecting a mismatch between education and labor market needs. Wave of unemployment also affected workers in agriculture and tourism, where demand fluctuates heavily during off-peak periods. These combined factors highlight the presence of frictional, structural, cyclical, and seasonal unemployment within the Indonesian economy.

1. Discuss the four main types of unemployment — frictional, structural, cyclical, and seasonal. Provide real-life examples for each type.

Task 2: e-Fishery Fraud Case

FAKULTAS ILMU KOMPUTER

"Pada akhir 2024, audit internal mengungkap bahwa startup agritech Indonesia, eFishery, melakukan pemalsuan laporan keuangan secara sistematis sejak 2018—melaporkan keuntungan rupiah 261 miliar padahal sebenarnya merugi 578 miliar, serta membesar-besarkan jumlah pendapatan hingga US$600 juta dan volume alat pengumpan hingga 400.000 unit padahal realitasnya hanya sekitar 24.000 unit. Setelah ditemukan manipulasi finansial tersebut, CEO dan co-founder menyatakan mundur dari jabatannya, ratusan karyawan di-PHK, dan Kedua pendiri serta beberapa manajemen dilaporkan ke polisi dengan kasus dugaan fraud dan penggelapan yang tengah diselidiki oleh aparat dan OJK." (Bisnis Indonesia, 2025)

1. Bagaimana manipulasi laporan keuangan dapat memengaruhi kepercayaan investor dan ekosistem startup di Indonesia?
2. Bagaiman peran OJK dan Auditor Eksternal dalam mencegah kasus serupa?
